Honomono, April 23rm, 1894.

WHEN Mr. HUGH FRASER, the British Minister to Japan, returned to Tokyo from leave at the beginning of February last was reported that he had brought back with him a treaty all ready for signature and that the vexed question of trenty revision was at last on the point of being solved. The report was received with some incredulity. but since that time rumours of a new treaty between Japan and England bave gathered force, and it would seem as though there is so much foundation for them, that negotiations are actively proceeding. The remours possess such consistency as to indicate from Victoria, B.C. on the 25th lost, for Japan the chief point on which difficulty is likely to arise, which is not mixed residence, nor the surrender of Consular jurisdiction, but in about four months. tariff autonomy. The Kokkei, as quoted by the Japan Gazette says that:-

is concentrating all its powers and stating everything on this treaty revision. And how is this re-vision progressing? Its condition has a direct off of on the condition of the nation in the ministry. And from San Francisco to the 10th just, and to show that the revision is advancing the Govern. Honolulu the 17th, has arrived at Yoko tama, mont has announced the new Hawaiian treaty and and will leave for this port to-day, the 28th, at given rise to the rumour that the Angle-Japanese & p.m. treaty is on the point of being signed. But the true facts are not to be influenced by vague rumours. The Angle-Jananess negotiations have not nearly reached that stage nor are they likely to so easily. Though Minister Aout should exert all his might, bugland will not yield on the tariff autonomy question. On opinion of the London Chamber of Commer e. That | when he arrives. body considers the tariff autonomy is the true subject of treaty revision; and the Mixed; Residence and abolition of Consular jurisdiction are matters governed by temporary circumstances, being brought about by the natural consequences of Booisl intercourse. The Chamber will not absolutely refuse its consent to the sidence in compensation; but the tariff autonomy the Central Station, will positively be opposed, as it has a close connection with the national economy. The general disposition To-morrow morning of the Chamber, therefore, is towards tariff reforms, It will thus be most difficult for Japan to recover the two autonomies in exchange for Mixed Residence. The Kokkai, therefore, refuses to believe that the treaty negotiations with Great Britain will be concluded before the opening of next session of Parliament. The three most difficult powers to deal with; concludes the paper, are England, Germany, and condition we have above releared to, while only preiminary notices have been given to the other two. The course of regotiations with them will depend

A report that negotiations with the British Governthat ratification of the revised treaty will probably take were destroyed. place before the opening of the coming session of the Dict. seems to have been received by the Japanese public with a measure of confidence. The metropolitan papers are now publishing various hypotheses us to the probable provisions of the agreement with England. On former But even these journals appear to place full confindece in the story now circulated. It is not to be expected that the Progressionists will approve any treaty, however advantageous, that may be concluded by the present Cabinet. Consequently, their organs, as well as those bedi approval of the alloged new treaty with England even buf re they venture to simulate knowledge of its conditions. They assume that Mixed Residence is to be granted alone, and that tatiff autonomy, is not to be recovered at

Of these papers the Nippon is most conspicuous All our Brandy is guaranteed to be pure for the zeal with which it endeavours to arone popular projudice against the imaginary treaty with England, the difference in price being merely a question of age and vintage.

They resolved to open communications with the allied factions of the Opposition, the Radical Party, and the papers belonging to the Journalistic League, for the purpose of concerting some united plan of action in opposition to the Government on the question of Trenty Revision. It is intelligible enough that they should confecwith the allied factions for such a purpose, but there is something decidedly strange in their proposal to Writing on the same subject, the Ra ical organ, the Figu Shimbun, romarks that nothing but an absolutely equal treaty will be approved by its Party. It is a noteworthy circumstance that none of the papers, not even the Nippon, say anything a rainst the opening of the country for Mirad H sidence, while For tos. Case the great majority of them lay some stress upon the fact that they are not in any way opposed to Mixed Mesidence in itself. So the present movement against mises. the Cabinet seems likely to turn entirely upon the subject of tariff autonomy. The opposition politicians hold that Japan ought to insist upon entire freedom to fix her unatoms duties by internal legislation, as is done in the united States of America. They seem to think indications, it is not likely that the anti-Revision movement, founded on such mistaken votions, will ever attain dangerous dimensions.
